Wladyslawowo

harbor

a

transverse slip for vessels of an estimated 500 tons has been built. The fish industry facilities have grown and improved. Otherwise the harbor has not changed much; there are no special new buildings. The war damages have been repaired. There were more than one hundred fishing vessels in the harbor. No naval vessels.

2. Explanation of the Drawing

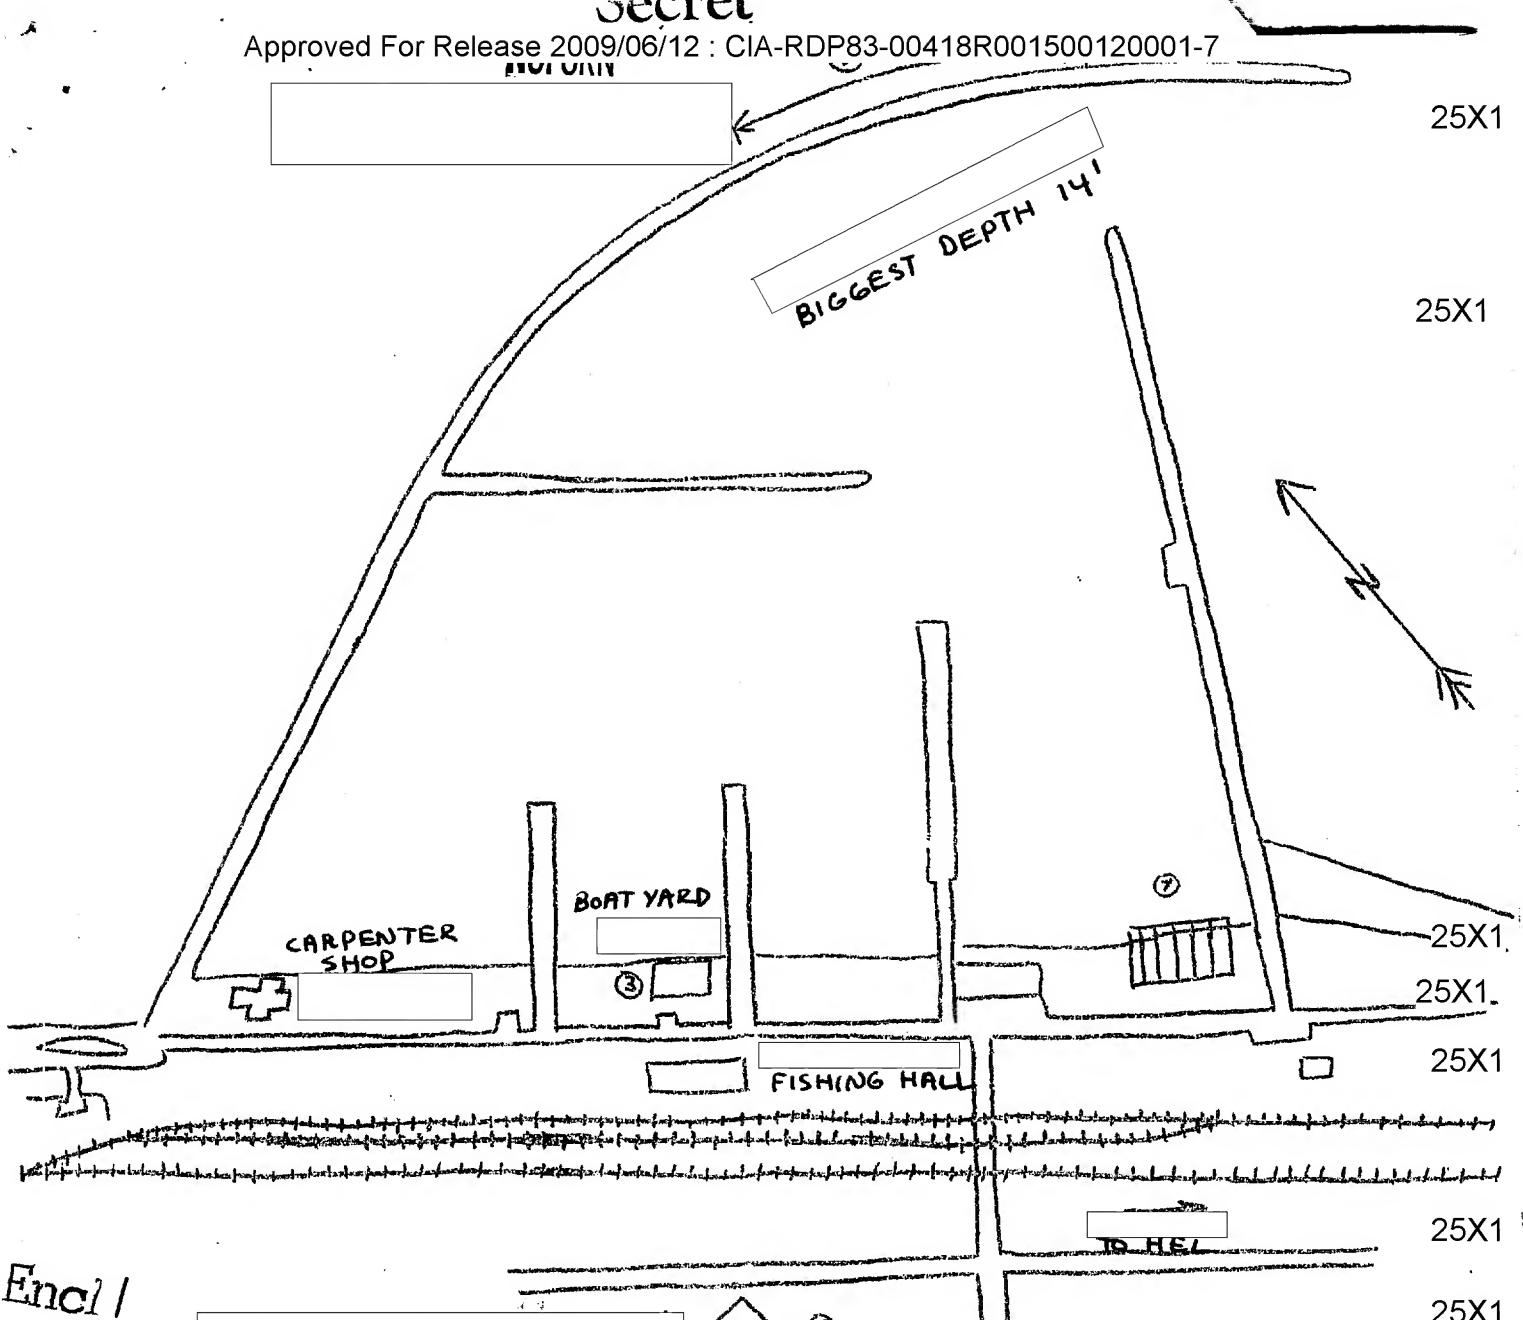

1. New transverse slip for repairs of fishing vessels.
2. New fishing industry building in two floors. On the top floor there is housing for the factory workers. The building is not completely finished.
3. Small boat yard. Only the smallest fishing boats can be built here.
4. The mole repaired on this piece.

1. [REDACTED] One landing craft on the beach east of the entrance to Swinemünde. One of them was just east of the mole and the other about 1 nautical mile further toward east. Both vessels stood with the stem on the beach and the landing flap (?) down. No people could be seen aboard or in the vicinity of the ships except from one unarmed soldier who stood near the closest vessel.

Stettin, the Gornoslaski Quay

The quay is 300 m long, and the height of the quay is about 1 m. (Drawing I). 4 railroad tracks, not lowered, ordinary track width. 4 el cranes, the 2 western as shown on drawing II and the eastern as on drawing III. The western cranes extend over 3 tracks and the eastern over all 4. The cranes can drive in tracks along the whole quay. One of the eastern cranes was temporarily out of order; the extension which extends out over the edge of the quay could not be lifted. The depth of the water by the quay is 8 metres. Building is being carried out on the quay on the other side of the railroad tracks.
